

SOUNDSFINE PRESENTS

TINARIWEN

26 - 31 MARCH 2007

"This is SENSATIONAL! The album of 2007 and we haven't even finished 2006 yet. There are plenty of bands who know how to rock, but very few know how to roll. Tinariwen are the masters of roll'n'roll."

“This extraordinary band are clearly pushing for more than cult world music status.

They fully merit it.” 4 stars.

UNCUT MAGAZINE

Featuring spiritually uplifting melodies, beguiling guitar patterns and insinuating rhythms, Tinariwen's desert blues is at once bang up to date and timeless.

Forged in the heat of the southern Sahara, Tinariwen's songs reflect the daily lives of the Touareg, a landless tribe scattered across the Sahara and into Libya by political change and conflict during the 1980s and 1990s.

Tinariwen created a new form of music, with the guitar at its heart, based on their own traditions and incorporating western and Arabic sounds heard in their wanderings.

They co-founded the now annual and internationally prestigious Festival in the Desert, scored a worldwide success with their second album, Amassakoul, and since winning the African section of the BBC 3 World Music Awards 2005, have continued to charm audiences with their music's trance-like beauty.
