Flamenco and jazz in perfect harmony

DON'T MISS

Voyage de Nuit

The Woodend Barn, Banchory, 8pm tonight

TRADITIONAL Celtic music meets the rhythm of flamenco and the harmony of jazz in a special one-off Tune Up tour which reaches the Woodend Barn, Banchory, tonight.

The line up will feature Philippe Guidat (guitar), Nuala Kennedy (flute/vocals), Mario Caribe (double bass), Diego Landivar (percussion) and Luke Daniels (accordion).

First meeting at the prestigious International World Music Residency OMI in "Discover a new musical world"

New York two years ago, musicians Philippe Guidat and Nuala Kennedy discovered a new musical world where they could combine their compositional styles. Nuala grew up playing traditional music in her native Dundalk, before moving to Scotland co-founding the trio Fine Friday. This month, the musicians embarked on this showcase Scottish tour, supported by the Scottish Arts Council, and will premiere a full-band concert version of their genre-defying work Voyage De Nuit.

FEAST OF FUSION: Voyage de Nuit weave their distinctive sound tonight.
