

Tigerfest back – in top class form

DUNFERMLINE'S premier music event is back in May and bigger and better than before.

Alternative music festival Tigerfest will be playing host to 16 top class bands in Dunfermline alone, with further festivities taking place in Edinburgh and Aberdeen. Performing at different venues over four days from Wednesday, May 13,

The Herald & Post looks at some of the best gigs lined up for the event ...

James Yorkston and Lisa Knapp,

Carnegie Hall, May 13:

Opening the event in Dunfermline is Fife's own Fence Collective original James Yorkston. A veteran of the music scene, Yorkston's back catalogue of artists he has worked with includes everyone from Portishead to John Martyn.

James Yorkston

His solo career kicked off after John Peel played demo 'Moving Up Country, Roaring The Gospel', later signing to Domino Records.

Violinist and singer Knapp will have been touring with Yorkston for a couple of months by the time they get to Carnegie Hall, and her fresh approach to traditional folk has earned her top spots alongside the Fence singer.

Modern but not forgetful of folk roots, Knapp's stunning voice will capture traditionalists and modern fans alike.

Cruiser / Found / Swimmer One, Carnegie Hall, May 14:

Local band Cruiser have bucked all trends when it comes to music. After releasing debut single 'Northern Electric', they went back to basics and grabbed Colin Murray's attention with electropop 'Happy Robots Smiling People'. In January this year, 'A Gentle Press' got the commendation of his Record of the Week.

Edinburgh four-piece Found continue the electronic line-up with a modern take on things, bringing '60s psychedelia to the present day. Unique and quite frankly a little strange, this band will have you waiting in anticipation to hear what they come up with next.

To complete this brilliant gig, Swimmer One take things

Angil, above left and right, Cruiser.

Smile
on my mac