

The Metro
22 April 2009
(20)

metro life

Arts & Entertainment

The Best Place... To See A Folk Supergroup

Going Across The Sea is a seven-strong collaboration of traditional musicians who explore the music that the Scots and Irish took to America. Describing themselves as 'a bunch of people having a great time', Lau's Kris Drever, Éamonn Coyne from Salsa Celtica, the Fence Collective's Tim Matthew and Orcadian fiddler Sarah McFadyen will be joined by Caleb Klauder and Sammy Lind of Oregon's Foghorn String Band and Betse Ellis, a founder member of Missouri's The Wilders. They also play Perth (Mon), Edinburgh (Tue), Stirling on April 29 and Glasgow on May 6.

Nadine McBay

Tonight, Carnegie Hall, East Port, Dunfermline, 7.30pm, £12, £11 concs.
Tel: 01383 602302. www.myspace.com/goingacrossthe sea